

TWO BALLOTS TAKEN BY DEMOCRATS

M'ADOO, PALMER AND COX HAVE LEAD OVER FIELD OF TWENTY-SIX STARTERS

ADJOURN UNTIL 9:30 THIS MORNING AFTER 12 HOUR SESSION

AUDITORIUM, San Francisco, July 2.—Two ballots on candidates were taken tonight by the Democratic national convention and with McAdoo, Palmer and Cox remaining at the head of the list in the order named but all along way from nomination, a recess was taken until tomorrow. The McAdoo people, claiming that they were certain to put their candidate over on the fourth ballot, opposed the adjournment which was taken on motion of former Representative Fitzgerald of New York. When it was put for a vote there was a loud chorus on each side of the question and Chairman Robinson declared it adopted while some of the McAdoo supporters were clamoring for a roll call on it. The three leading candidates all gained on the second ballot at the expense of the big field of favorite sons, a score of whom received some support. Balloting on the presidency started late in the evening after the convention had adopted the platform as framed by its platform committee rejecting the bone dry proposal of William J. Bryan, the beer and wine plank of the New York delegation, the plank for Irish recognition backed by several organizations of Irish sympathizers, and several other planks which were brought up on the floor after they had been rejected in the committee.

The result of the prohibition battle was to leave the platform without any reference at all to that subject.

William Jennings Bryan beaten decisively in all his attempts to alter the administration platform, President Wilson's supporters in full control at all strategic points, the convention two ballots advanced toward its selection of a presidential nominee; and called to assemble again at 9:30 o'clock this morning to end the job; the McAdoo movement steadily sliding forward "like a glacier," to use the language of its supporters, evidences of a stiffening of the movement against it.

These brief sentences epitomize the situation as it was early this morning, a few hours before the convention goes forward in its work of choosing a nominee. When the convention after a grueling ten hour day voting by heavy majorities over all attempts to alter the administration platform and finished its first two ballots the leaders were McAdoo, Palmer and Cox in that order with votes scattering among twenty other candidates. The night and early hours of the morning were spent in hurried conferences of the McAdoo people strengthening their lines and preparing for the early balloting of this morning while the others of this coalition against the president's son-in-law was making every effort to find a rallying point to stem the tide which seemed to be threatening to sweep him onward toward the nomination.

At 10:27 Chairman Robinson, Senator Glass and Mr. Bryan appeared together on the platform and there was a scattered patter of applause. Some cheers for Bryan followed from corners of the galleries and there were a lot of impatient demands that the convention get under way. "Let's go, let's go," the crowd called. The band quieted it by striking up "Over There."

Apparently the plan of procedure had not yet been completed and Senator Robinson and the others on the platform gathered in a little circle and put their heads together while the impatient of the delegates gathered in the hall and broke out again in loud demands for action.

At 10:35 Senator Robinson pointed for order and the hall quieted down very quickly. Amid more cheers Senator Robinson presented Senator Glass and the reading of the platform began. Delegates and galleries listened attentively and interrupted the opening references to President Wilson with hand clapping. At the point where the platform declares for the league of nations, Senator Glass put the emphasis on the word "the" and the convention stood up and cheered for a minute while the band struck up another rollicking tune.

Platform is lengthy. Senator Glass began reading at the rate of 56 words a minute. The platform exceeds 5,000 words. Without interruptions for reading of the Bryan league plank but its provisions also got some applause. It demanded an amendment to the constitution for ratification of treaties by a majority vote of the senate.

When Mr. Bryan finished reading his planks he sat down and W. Bourke Cochrane of New York, another veteran of many Democratic conventions was recognized to also present a minority report. He said Mr. Bryan had been inadequate in his description of the efforts of the platform committee to write a great platform.

Mr. Cochrane's minority report was a wet plank. He told the convention that had Mr. Bryan consented to let the committee report stand he doubted whether the wets would have raised the question.

"But Mr. Bryan and evasion are irreconcilable within the same hall," he added, "and now that the issue has been raised, thank God the convention can no longer dodge."

A roar of cheering greeted the language of the plank which declared for manufacture and home consumption of cider, light wines and beer. Just as the reading was finished someone upset a glass of water on the speakers' table and it went down the neck of the official stenographer.

Edward L. Doherty of California was the next to bring in a minority plank.

It was in part the Irish plank for which an unsuccessful fight had been waged by organized Irish sympathizers in the committee, but as read by Mr. Doherty it did not contain a declaration for recognition of the Irish republic.

Presenting the minority plank of soldier relief, Tom Lyons of Oklahoma declared the division on its adoption in the committee had been so close that it took three roll calls before it was certain that it had been defeated.

While the minority propositions were being read the leaders conferred and agreed on a plan to limit debate to three hours and a half.

Chairman Robinson presented the arrangement to the convention for approval and although there were many cries of "cut it down" and one delegate yelled "cut out the three hours," unanimous consent for the agreement was refused by a chorus of objections but on motion of Senator Glass the rules were suspended and the three hour and a half plan was agreed to.

Then William Jennings Bryan was recognized to begin argument on his proposals. He was allotted an hour under the convention's agreement but said he would yield a large part of that time to others supporting him.

Beginning his argument with an argument in support of the eighteenth amendment, Mr. Bryan soon got the convention to cheering. Every Democrat to begin his fight for his minority planks. He was greeted with a minute of cheering in which virtually few delegates took prominent part. Opening his speech diplomatically with praise for the platform, he declared it one of the strongest ever adopted by a political party. He added that whatever difference of opinion there had been in the platform committee it had been over the means and not the end to be accomplished, but it was one of the prerogatives of a Democrat to speak his own views.

"I am glad to come to you and say that I am ready to endorse almost all that is written there," he continued and an uproar of approval and disapproval interrupted him.

"Make it all, make it all," yelled several of the delegates.

Bryan's Five Planks. Under the rules Mr. Bryan was required to read all of his proposed planks before the discussion of any of them could begin. The bone dry proposition he presented first and then followed the declarations he had drafted for publication of a government bulletin for dealing with profiteers and to put the party on record as opposing compulsory military training in times of peace.

When he came to the last of his five planks which dealt with the league of nations, Mr. Bryan preface its reading by saying that nothing contained in it was intended to conflict with the majority platform's words of praise for the president.

The peace treaty, he added, was "better than anyone had a right to expect, considering the circumstances with which the president had to deal." Some "noes" interrupted the longer bursts of applause as he went on.

When he prepared to turn to the other planks he had presented there were protests from the galleries and demands that he go on.

"No," he replied while the crowd cheered, "but I'll come back to that after awhile."

The plank for the national bulletin to publish official news he declared would put the party on record as favoring "light and not darkness."

Many of the newspapers he argued were controlled by predatory interests while many others erred unintentionally thru the influence of advertisements.

Briefly he presented the merits of the profiteering plank he ordered and which he said he could not get into the Republican platform because nearly all the profiteers were there in the convention or in the galleries.

The plank now was offered to the Democrats, he added, in order to drive out of the party any profiteers who might remain in it.

The plank against universal military training also was argued very briefly by the speaker and then he turned to his league declaration.

"I want the constitution changed," he said, "so we can get out of war as easily as we get into war. We fought the war to establish the great principle of democracy, the principle of majority rule. If we declare here for ratification of the treaty with reservations that a majority of the senators agree on the Republicans will have to join us in that declaration or else we will take most of the Republican party away."

"Isn't it better to take this stand which will insure acceptance of the league of nations which people want and put the banner of progress into the hands of Woodrow Wilson to carry forward?"

At the close of the speech the applause swelled up again as Mr. Bryan leaned smiling over the front of the platform and received a large bouquet of posies sent up by Mrs. George E. Hull of Lincoln, Neb., his home town.

The demonstration lasted only a fraction of a minute, however, and Richard Pearson Hobson of Alabama was presented to support the Bryan dry plank. Hobson got into the convention on a proxy a few days earlier in the day.

Senator Reed of Missouri had left for home because he could not get on the convention floor with an alternate's proxy. Hobson stirred up a rumpus when he charged that there was on foot a "conspiracy against the constitution." In the center of the hall Representatives A. K. Sabath of Illinois jumped to his feet and shouted, "You are saying something that is not true," and hisses up with the applause. The chairman got order but the disturbance started up again when a moment later the speaker shouted that those who did not like the constitution should leave the country.

In Behalf of Women. Mrs. Peter Olson of Minnesota was the next speaker to be called by Mr. Bryan in support of his program. She said she spoke in the name of the motherhood of America in supporting the dry declaration.

"I am told," she said, "that somewhere in a lodge room in this building there is a coffin. I wonder whether that coffin is prepared for the liquor interests or for the Democratic party. For if you put in this wet plank you might as well get the coffin ready."

It was not the liquor interests but the non-partisan league she said, that recently defeated Representative Volstead, author of the Volstead act, for re-election in Minnesota. "Sir Oliver Lodge passed over this country," she continued, "reading communication with departed spirits. But from the smell of the breaths of some of the men I've met in San Francisco, I think they have been in communication with the ghosts who have been holding converse with John Barleycorn."

In a dramatic appeal which got the convention again to its feet, Mrs. Olson explained that God would help her in the fight she will be making for it was for the sake of her child that she was fighting.

"Let it never be said," she cried, "that the Democratic party thinks more of its appetites than of the children of the land. God speed the right." "God speed the right," repeated (Continued on Page Four.)

Supporters Claim Their Candidate Will Go Over on Fifth Ballot

SAN FRANCISCO, July 2.—The combination against William G. McAdoo found itself tonight to use the language of one of the administration leaders without any candidate on whom to coalesce. McAdoo supporters continued to predict a nomination for him somewhere near the fifth ballot.

While the convention was engaged in the demonstrations and discussions of the platforms from field and the inner circle of old line party leaders who hoped to prevent his nomination continued at work but privately said they were accomplishing little because they could find no candidate about whom all the forces of McAdoo could be centered.

The proponents included a group of 200 street car employees with whom the company has agreed to raise their hourly wages from 42 to 53 cents, if the state utilities commission approves the 7 cent fare. The opponents included 2,000 employees of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois railroad shops at Danville who would be compelled to pay the two cents extra. After conferring with the two groups the city council agreed that if he convinced the commission his company should have a 7 cent cash fare, the shopmen would be permitted to buy 60 tickets for $3 or a ride at six cents, and four tickets for 25 cents.

DEMOCRATS ADOPT PLATFORM AS FRAMED BY SUB-COMMITTEE

Goes Thru Convention Unscathed After Furious Floor Fight

SAN FRANCISCO, July 2.—The Democratic platform as framed in the resolutions committee declaring for the peace treaty expressing sympathy for Ireland and saying nothing about prohibition came unscathed thru a furious floor fight today and was adopted without amendment in a great avalanche of applause.

William Jennings Bryan led the fight for amendment but his bone dry plank was buried after a dramatic day of debate by a majority so overwhelming that he did not even ask for roll calls on the four other minority proposals he had championed in an emotional speech by W. Bourke Cochrane of New York, also was thrown out by the convention, along with a plank for recognition of the Irish republic backed by several organizations of Irish sympathizers.

In the battle for the platform as framed the administration forces were led by Secretary Colby and Senator Glass of Virginia during a debate in which both sides stirred delegates and spectators to repeated bursts of enthusiasm. Mr. Bryan got a demonstration of twenty minutes after he concluded his speech for the bone dry plank, but when the balloting began it became apparent much of the enthusiasm was a personal tribute to his past service to the party, and not an expression of sympathy with his present views.

CONFER WITH GERMAN DELEGATES

BRUSSELS, July 2.—The supreme allied council met here this morning and began consideration of the program which will be discussed with German delegates at the meeting at Spa next week. A very unfavorable impression was created when it became known that a memorandum by German experts regarding the economic situation of Germany had been submitted to the allied governments. The step was regarded as a maneuver to prepare the way for strong resistance to the execution of the treaty.

The council listened to Marshal Foch report the disarmament clauses of the treaty which Germany has not executed and instructed the military, naval and aerial experts to draw up a complete list of such omissions. Experts of the reparations commission likewise were instructed to prepare a memorandum on Germany's failure to fulfill the coal delivery requirements.

ed Mr. Cockran rising in reply. With that invocation the last speaker concluded and with that invocation I begin. We have heard a great deal here that was highly interesting and picturesque and extravagant but it is a peculiar thing in history that most of what is bad has been conceived by people who were good, by ill digested efforts to coerce people in their daily lives.

"I am opposed to the word prohibition. I abhor it. It is the word you will find chalked up in all the penitentiaries. If it is necessary to have prohibition and to force the people to do what they do not want to do then I say they are not fit for self government and ready for submission to a monarchy."

"The question is whether in an effort to uproot a fancied evil, we are going to overturn the whole system and foundation of government."

Democracy and Autocracy.
There really were only two theories of government said the speaker, that of democracy which rested on trust and confidence in human virtues and that of autocracy which rested on coercive measures to curb the distracted popular faculties.

Substitute for our Democratic faith the coercion that holds a club over people to make them good," he continued, "and you have destroyed the only condition of society under which democracies must exist."

"We are not proposing that we tear down any constitutional provision. The eighteenth amendment declares illegal the sale of intoxicating liquors and it declares that the nation and the state shall have concurrent jurisdiction. The federal government

A Plea for Personal Liberty.
"If a man in Oregon can by his vote regulate what I shall drink in New York," said the speaker, "then he can do the same thing with what I shall eat and what I shall wear. And that is not a just government. That is not this government as it was originally projected by the fathers."

"I ask you not to vote to bring back rum-but to bring back to the localities the right to govern themselves. Let it once be conceded that morality can only be enforced with a club by the federal government and where can you stop it? How long will it be before men of the south before your treatment of the negro question, the most successful in the age, will be brought under the same fallacious theory."

Hundreds of delegates got up and cheered with the galleries when he ended. It seemed there was a majority up but even the wet leaders doubted whether a roll call would show such an enthusiasm for the wet cause. A large part of the demonstration seemed to be a personal tribute to the eloquence of the veteran New York orator.

Captain Hobson was one of those who shook his hand and congratulated him on his speech.

Debate on the Irish plank began as soon as the convention had settled down again for business.

Thomas J. Spellacy, Connecticut's member of the platform committee took charge of the fight for the minority plank and introduced Representative Augustine Lonergan of that state as the first speaker.

Anchoring his argument to President Wilson's principle of self determination Lonergan declared that to do less than recognize the right of full self determination in Ireland would be to throw overboard the teachings of the party's leader.

Argued Irish Plank.
"The principle of self determination was accepted by all the nations associated with us," he continued, "and shall it be said that the doctrine now is to be applied to the foe but not to those who have been our friends?"

T. J. Duffy of East Liverpool, Ohio, took up the argument for the minority Irish plank declaring it seemed to have become apparent that it was impossible for Ireland to win independence by the sword.

"But they have given to the world a noble lesson," he continued. "They have established a republic by the intelligent methods of peace and they submit their case to the judgment of the world."

Charles F. X. O'Brien of Jersey City, N. J., another speaker for the Irish plank assured the convention and also his state was forced to disagree with the majority on several subjects the New Jersey Democrats were Democrats first and last and would support the platform adopted and the candidate nominated.

His speech was followed by more cheering while the band played a medley of Irish melodies, leading off with "My Wild Irish Rose."

Senator David I. Walsh, Massachusetts, who had led the unavailing fight for the Irish plank in committee took the stand to conclude the argument for its adoption.

"Circumstances connected with the fight of the Irish people for freedom," he said, "require that there be something more than a mere expression of sympathy. No word spoken during the war so thrilled the oppressed people of the world as the statement that America was in the war to apply the principle of self determination."

"Is there a principle of self determination? If there is where in the face of God's earth should it be applied if not in Ireland where we find the only English speaking people in all the world that is fighting for a government of their own?"

cannot enforce that law without a machinery of federal officials which has never been provided and which it would be almost impossible to employ.

"This amendment isn't enforced now and it can't be. It may be enforced in some sections where no amendment was necessary just as to the fourteenth amendment is enforced in some northern states where there is no negro question. There is no way in which a law can be enforced against the judgment of a community. These ladies and gentlemen speak as the liquor had been abolished by this amendment. It has not. The result has been that where the average drinker used to be jolly, now he is paralyzed. He used to touch the bottle to spur his enterprises, now he gets no further than the bottle, which in itself becomes an enterprise."

While Cockran was speaking Bryan sat smiling close behind him, evidently enjoying the flow of the New Yorker's oratory. The crowd enjoyed it too and answered him again and again with thunders of applause.

If there was to be no more war, said Senator Walsh, then it was only by peaceable means that the principle of self-determination could be applied. The first and most important step in that direction, he declared, long since had been taken when the Irish people by every possible means had informed Great Britain and the world what their desire was and how overwhelming was the sentiment supporting Irish independence.

While the debate was in progress an attempt was made to get an agreement for a recess for dinner as soon as the platform had been voted on. The McAdoo people were inclined not to agree to it.

Presents Soldier Relief.
The Irish argument concluded, My Lyons arose to argue for his plank on soldier relief. It provided for a commission to study the question of fair and just compensation for ex-service men.

He said the plank lost out in committee by a majority of one, 26 supporting it to 27 opposing. "It is said," the speaker continued, "that it will take a lot of money out of the treasury. But we are not asking for one cent except for the expenses of this commission and then if it is decided compensation ought to be paid that question can be decided when it comes up."

He said it was not proposed to settle to debt to the war veterans by money payment but that his plank only would give a hearing to those who might be in need because of their war sacrifices.

R. C. Merché, Democratic national committeeman from New Hampshire joined in support of the minority compensation plank.

He said most of those who served in the war were able to take care of themselves but that there were some who were in need.

"I'm sure we won't want these men," he continued, "to say that altho they went to the aid of their country in its time of need their country is not willing to aid them when they are in need."

With twenty minutes of his hour remaining Mr. Bryan again took the platform to carry home the battle for his minority planks.

The crowd yelled again when his familiar figure reappeared at the speakers' table but soon quieted down.

Speaking for his plank for a national bulletin he said he had lacked one vote of a majority in the committee. The virtue of the publication suggested, he said, would be that the people could get unbiased news that would be worth ten million dollars in a presidential campaign and would prevent Wall Street from building a fence of greenbacks around the white house.

Briefly he reviewed his arguments for the profiteering plank and that opposing universal military training. Coming to the league of nations again, he said no one had made more speeches than he for ratification of the treaty without reservations.

It had become apparent, however, that that was impossible.

"Shame on the man," he continued, "that talks of making this a party question when the world is on fire. Who shall give a guarantee that the world would not drift back into war while we are debating reservations?"

Praising provisions of the treaty he declared the path toward world peace had been cleared by the instrument's provisions for disarmament, open diplomatic negotiations and investigation of international differences.

Bryan Eulogizes Wilson.
"They'll never be able to erase from the pages of history," he continued, "the name of Woodrow Wilson who gave these great principles to the world. You can't call me the enemy of Woodrow Wilson. Why, it was my peace plan he took to Paris and I have done all I could to help him get it ratified. If I could secure its ratification and let him have the credit of it, I'd gladly walk up to the scaffold and die for such a cause. But it cannot be done."

I do not care to go to the judgment seat of God with any blood on my hands. I do not propose to have it said that women and children were killed while I was talking politics."

The speech fired the hall again and when the Nebraskan asked how much time he had left delegates and galleries joined in demanding that he go.

"Take an hour," "take all the time you want," the crowd yelled as it whooped it up again for Bryan.

"No," he said, taking a drink of water, "I must turn to our domestic questions."

Pleads for Prohibition.
A storm of protest from the wets interrupted him as he referred to those who wanted to bring back the "dram shop."

"Be fair," yelled many and Mr. Bryan replied:

"If any member of the New York or New Jersey delegation or any other delegation that is wet, really is glad that the saloon is gone, I want him to stand up so that I can see him."

A woman in the New York delegation was first to arise and in a minute large sections of the delegates were on their feet cheering and taunting the speaker.

"And I voted for you too," yelled one of those standing.

"Yes, and if you're sorry you voted for me and are going to leave me because I stand for the home against the saloon, then I'll get two in your place," replied Bryan.

Taunts and protests mingled with an outburst of applause as the speech was concluded with an oratorical picture of the benefits that would come to the world through prohibition. Again and again he came to the front of the platform and bowed as the bedlam kept up.

A parade soon was organized, the Texas standard being the first to get into motion. Washington, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Virginia, Nebraska, West Virginia, Kentucky, Arizona and others followed and then more than a score were bunched in front of the speakers while the enthusiasts cheered wildly. The old "we want Bryan," heard in every Democratic convention since 1896 was about the only distinguishable yell.

There was a real fight over the California standard and it was torn to pieces. A woman borne on the shoulders of men made off with a part of the state name and was carried to the speakers' stand where she waved the remnant triumphantly. The Alabama standard also was smashed in an effort to get it into the parade and there were lesser scraps over the emblems of other states. At the height of the excitement a woman dressed in a Grecian costume of white to symbolize purity got to the top of the speaker's stand and set the demonstrators wild again.

The turmoil had been on for ten minutes when Senator Robinson tried to get order. The cries of "Bryan, Bryan," would not be quieted however, and altho most of the standards were back in place hundreds of delegates remained on their feet and the galleries refused to be in order.

Five minutes work with the gavel had restored some semblance of order when the avalanche of sound broke loose again.

The appearance in front of the platform of a woman delegate bearing the fragments of the Alabama state banner. When it had continued twenty minutes in all the demonstration was roaring along despite all efforts of the chairman to stem it. He hammered long and loudly and tried to speak but he was howled down.

At last he got a hearing and declared he would clear the galleries unless they quieted. That got results and after 23 minutes the dry enthusiasts let the business go on.

Senator Glass then presented Bainbridge Colby who was greeted with cheers and began his address by a tribute to the ability and past achievements of Mr. Bryan.

Secretary Colby Talks.
"I am not very much concerned with this idea for a government owned newspaper," he said. "We've got one or two of those things. We've got the Congressional Record, for instance, which somebody has described as the most widely unread newspaper of the country."

"With regard to the liquor question I suppose all of you will vote your convictions. But I do want to say a word about Mr. Bryan's new plan about the league of nations. For some time Mr. Bryan was for the treaty and then he began to emulate the Republicans and talk about reservations."

"They are for the treaty, too, but they all have reservations in their pockets. They remind one of a group of people who have been described as meaning well feebly."

Replying to Mr. Bryan's declaration that a stand for an immediate compromise ratification would pull the bulk of the Republican party over into the Democratic fold he said the Democrats had long been trying to do something like that.

"My Bryan says in so many words that no one could have brought back so good a treaty as President Wilson did. Then, if that's true, for God's sake, let's ratify it."

The senate he said had had its day in court with the treaty and that day had lasted nine months so that some of them apparently had suffered from "intellectual lockjaw."

"The question passes," he said, "to a higher tribunal."

"The Democratic party is for the league of nations without reservations that impair its integrity of course we are because when America goes into a thing it goes in honestly. It goes in a hundred per cent."

At that the crowd let go again and when he remarked that he must conclude it cried, "go on, go on."

"The Republican," he continued, "is saying with tongue in its cheek that we should take this league but should take it on their terms. They are trying to take away from the Democratic party the distinction of this great achievement."

Demonstration for Colby.
Concluding with a tribute to the president he got another rising demonstration. The band helped by playing "Dixie" and a procession was organized. The District of Columbia standard led and presently had swept virtually all of the state standards again to the front of the hall.

The Massachusetts was the last to join and as it was carried forward there was another outburst of approbation. Rollicking music by the band got the marchers to dancing.

"Stand by the platform," yelled the crowd and there were many demands that Colby come out to acknowledge the applause. At last he did so and then Senator Robinson began to pound for quiet. In all the demonstration had lasted ten minutes before business could be resumed.

Taking up the burden of the administration fight for the platform, Senator Glass began with an allusion to Mr. Bryan's declaration that he would be willing to go to the scaffold if he could secure ratification of the treaty without reservations.

"It is not against men who are willing to make such a sacrifice that I object," Senator Glass said. "But the men I do object to are those who would go to the door of a sick chamber and knock in a disturbing way."

"Our quarrel is not with Mr. Bryan for what he proposes, but for the method that he proposes and because he joins forces with those enemies of Woodrow Wilson who were so relentless that they were willing to go to his sick chamber and take witness of his body as to the qualities of his great mind."

"Talk about amending the constitution when women and children are dying and half the world is aflame. Why, Susan B. Anthony and her associates and successors have tried for more than thirty years to amend the constitution."

Senator Glass protested against what he said was an attempt to take credit of the league of nations away from the president and give it to Henry Cabot Lodge.

Turning to Mr. Bryan's prohibition argument, he referred to Bryan's statement that there was an attempt to leave the corpse of the liquor traffic unburied. "Not at all," he continued. "But what we do propose is that we shall not drag that corpse from one end of the country to the other."

tion that he was willing to remit the ten billions owed to the nations abroad if that would establish universal peace.

Because some newspapermen are liars, he continued, Mr. Bryan wanted to insult all newspapermen by putting into the platform a declaration for an official government newspaper. Senator Glass said that Bryan "wants to drive the profiteers into the Republican party," he added. "I want to put them in jail," said Mr. Glass.

The crowd gave the speaker a demonstration of approval when he wound up, by shouting: "The only thing approaching intimidation was the threat of Mr. Bryan to meet me up here on this speakers stand and here I am."

Compulsory military training, he said, was not an issue and the committee had felt it was not the time to make it an issue.

When he asked what else the opponents of the platform had proposed, there were yells of "vote, vote," and Senator Glass retired amid applause that ended the debate.

CONVICTS ESCAPE.

Joliet, Ill., July 2.—Nine convicts escaped late today by crawling under a fence surrounding construction work in the new prison. PATRONS
ATTENTION!A New Meter
Reading

is

Adopted

One man will give entire time to this work--means better

The Plan In Detail

The city has been divided into three general districts and bills will be rendered in each district on different dates. This will make three discount days.

The purpose is to enable us to render more satisfactory and efficient service.

The plan followed in the past has been to employ a number of meter readers during the closing days of each month and then render bills on the first day of the month.

By the new plan one meter reader, a man of experience and judgment, will be employed at this work all the time.

By having the city divided into districts it will make it possible for this one man to cover the entire territory. It has been necessary frequently to take men from the meter repair department to help out with the reading and the frequent changes in the personnel of meter readers has resulted in some inconveniences.

The one meter reader employed will read all meters and take care of statements or complaints made by patrons.

We believe this plan will afford prompt, efficient and satisfactory service to our patrons.

In the beginning the difference in the dates for payment may be a trifle confusing to consumers, but we believe this difficulty will soon disappear.

Business men will find the dates for payment of business and their houses differ, but even this will cause no confusion as soon as the plan is thoroughly understood.

Territory Divisions

No. 1—All territory north of State street. The bills will be mailed or delivered on the 10th of the month and the last discount date will be the 20th.

No. 2—All territory south of State street. The bills will be mailed or delivered on the 20th of the month and the last discount date will be the 30th of the month.

No. 3.—The public square and adjacent business territory. Bills will be mailed or delivered on the last day of the month and the last discount day will be the 10th of the following month.

URGES PEOPLE TO FIGHT WITH SIMPLE H

Can Make Pint at Home and C
 Druggist of Covington, K
 Special Study of

Says: Inflamed
Invite Influe

People who say that catarrh is a disease not to be taken seriously are harshly rebuked by a Kentucky druggist who has for years been much interested in the growth of this loathsome, yet altogether too common disease.

He claims that the sore, tender, inflamed membrane of the nostrils and throat is a prolific breeding ground for germs—not only the germs of influenza, but many other kinds as well.

If people would only stop experimenting for two weeks and try a simple remedy made of Mentholized Arcline mixed with enough boiled water to make a full pint, half of the catarrh in this country would be abolished. It's really no joke for people who don't know the recipe to a simple remedy made of Mentholized Arcline mixed with enough boiled water to make a full pint, half of the catarrh in this country would be abolished. It's really no joke for people

Ask for three-ounce of Mentholized Arcline that's all you need and have mixed it with enough water to make a pint. Spray twice daily and spray some up the nostrils, rectum.

The tender nostrils will soon lose their soreness, heal up, and be clean and healthy.

Important Reminder: Just as soon as anyone in the family gets a cold in the head, check it at once with this same medicine.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS AT STATE HOSPITAL

Vocational Building Being Erected—Dairy Barn and Tuberculosis Cottage Also Planned.

A new building is being erected by the Jacksonville state hospital at the corner of South Main and the south drive to be used for vocational training. It is of reinforced concrete and glass, one story high in the style of the modern buildings.

The wings are each 40 by 142 feet and are joined by a smaller building 25 by 40 feet making the plant in the form of an "H." The floors are already made and the work of pouring the girders and columns is now in progress. The walls will be of brick for three feet and the remainder of the wall will be glass set in steel frame.

The largest girder is 103 feet long and is supported by four columns which were poured in one piece yesterday. This is the longest and largest concrete girder in this part of the country.

The floor has a total of over 11,000 square feet, is of concrete and is furnished for the heating pipes and wires. The roof will be of gravel, making the building entirely fire proof.

Materials for the building cost $16,000 and the work is being done by the regular hospital force with the aid of patients who are doing some of the carpenter and concrete work. There is only one outside man on the job.

The building will be used for vocational training which Dr. Hill the managing officer of the hospital, is adding to the work in occupational therapy as the next logical step. Here the patients will be taught, chairmaking, tailoring, cobbling, and such trades as will be found practicable. It is hoped that the department of public welfare will make an appropriation for a rotary fund which can be used to buy raw materials to start the plant working after which the sale of the products will bring in the money necessary for the purchasing of more raw material and make the plant self supporting.

Besides this building the hospital is planning to build a new dairy barn and also a tuberculosis cottage this summer.

CONVENTION SIDE LIGHTS IN ADDRESS

Horace H. Bancroft Talked to Rotary Club in Interesting Vein About Big Republican Gathering.

"Side Lights on the Republican National Convention," was the unannounced theme of a very informing address by Horace H. Bancroft Friday noon at the luncheon of the Rotary club. Vice President Vincent Riley presided and several matters of business were given attention before the regular program for the day got under way.

On motion of W. L. Fay, a committee was appointed to arrange for the transfer of property on Meredosia bay to be held in trust for the Rotary club for the use of organizations of boys and girls in Morgan county. A club house is in course of erection on the property and the title is now held by private individuals. The purpose of the motion was to provide for permanent and continuous holding of the property. The motion provided that John J. Reeve, Paul Samuel and Frank J. Heint should constitute the committee.

Gifts Acknowledged.
It was announced by the chairman, that Charles T. Mackness of the Jacksonville Farm Supply Co. had presented a windmill and pump to equip the well at the club house. Then Mr. Mackness made the announcement that the windmill firm had presented a steel flag staff for the building. Quite in line with the action already noted, Frank Byrns, who sat next Walter Ayers, said that an insurance man had agreed to carry the policy on the club house for one year without cost.

The chairman said he was very sure that Mr. Bancroft would tell his story well and would be heard with pleasure, and so it proved. Mr. Bancroft has attended five Republican conventions and at three of them has served in some official capacity. He referred briefly to the 1896 convention in St. Louis, when Senator Teller and certain of his friends in most dramatic way marched from the coliseum and the ranks of the party. Then he referred to the convention when William H. Taft was first nominated; that of 1916 when Charles H. Hughes became the standard bearer, and the more recent gathering resulting in the choice of Senator Harding of Ohio.

Coliseum Plans.
The speaker in a graphic way described the coliseum building arrangements and its seating capacity for 14,000 people. There are 15 entrances with a ticket taker, policeman and sergeant at arms at each. Then on the inside an usher and sergeant at arms, further guard each entrance.

Some interesting details were given as to the platform seating arrangements and the press gallery with its capacity for 500 newspaper workers. At the national convention interest always attaches to such conspicuous figures as Chauncey M. Depew. Uncle Joe Cannon and other men long identified with the party and active in its councils.

Mr. Bancroft referred to the speech of Chauncey M. Depew at the last Chicago convention as one of the high points of interest. Altho Mr. Depew is 86 years of age, he spoke with vigor and forcefulness for 25 minutes and showed no signs of exhaustion. The address was the more wonderful because it indicated very clearly that the aged party man has a thorough understanding of the present day problems and that he is as much a student of world affairs as he was twenty or more years ago.

Gov. Willis an Orator.
In Mr. Bancroft's opinion the most notable among the nominating speeches was that of Gov. Willis of Ohio, who brought Senator Harding's name before the convention. The speaker said that he had not arrived at this estimate of the address merely because Senator Harding was nominated, but from the striking eloquence of the Ohio governor. Another speech which attracted more than usual attention from the delegates was that by Mrs. Franklin Robinson, a sister of Theodore Roosevelt, in seconding the nomination of Gen. Wood. Going into some detail as to the work of the national committee in preparing for a convention and referring to the orderly and methodical way in which convention affairs are managed, Mr. Bancroft gave his hearers a great deal of new light on an interesting and momentous subject.

Referring again to nominating speeches, Mr. Bancroft turned to that made by a blind congressman as possibly the most touching incident of the convention. This congressman was led to the platform by his little son who then retired to a seat nearby. Turning to the audience, the congressman said, while the silence was tense: "When my little son was four years old he sat in my lap and looking up into my face, said 'Father, can you see me?' 'No with my eyes,' I replied, 'but, my son, I can see you clearly with my heart.' So today I place in nomination for the presidency of the United States, Hiram Johnson of California, who sees the people with his heart."

Believes in Two Parties.
In the closing hours of the convention Mr. Bancroft paid a number of the motions for the chairman, Senator Lodge, whose voice was gone, and so the Jacksonville man was in very close touch with the momentous events of the convention. In closing Mr. Bancroft expressed himself as a hearty believer in the benefits which come to this country from having two great political parties, and so the affairs of the country directed by a majority. He expressed the hope that the day will not come when the people of the United States are divided into eight or ten different groups or parties as is the case with some of the countries in the old world.

"DICK" RUBLE HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Well Known Ball Player Escapes Death When Truck Overturns—Is Member of Indies Ball Team.

The following from the Franklin Times relates to Dick Ruble, who plays second base for the local Independent ball team. Ruble is one of the best ball players in this part of the country and his many friends will congratulate him on his miraculous escape from almost certain death. The story follows:

"Dick" Ruble, the produce man, must have as many lives as the proverbial cat. At any rate he went through an experience Thursday which in 999 cases out of 1,000 would have resulted in death, and he came out with one slight scratch.

"Ruble was coming home from Nortonville with ten hogs in the back of his truck for Martin Anderson and while bowling along at a rapid rate near Leslie Peak's a hog squealed. He looked around to see what ailed the porker and five seconds later was crawling out of a wreck. He had missed the end of a culvert and the truck turned completely over and landed upside down in a deep gully below the level of the road.

"The cab of the truck was smashed to kindling. Ruble was evidently thrown clear as it turned over, else he would have been crushed beneath it. The hogs were thrown over the fence into an adjoining field and one had a jaw broken. A block and tackle secured in a near by tree were used to pull the auto out of the gully and when it was righted and cranked up it was found to be in running order and came to town under its own power.
